The essence of a horse that exists, and the essence of a horse that doesn't are absolutely the same, namely horse-ness; a horse's existing is totally different from what kind of a thing it is. Therefore, there must be something about really existing things that accounts for this very existing, and it is not their essence; it is their existence.

Actus Essendi is a Latin expression coined by Saint Thomas Aquinas (1225–1274). Translated as 'act of being', the expression actus essendi is a metaphysical principle outlined by Aquinas in his Christian reinterpretation of Aristotle. It relates to the essence of a thing, and how we as humans perceive this essence.
