This time last year, I was trying to figure out how to make my life work. I knew that my job was not fulfilling, but I had a car payment and rent...for those of you that are unfamiliar with how much a studio apartment on the beach is in the Del Mar/Solana Beach area is, it was $1185 a month which is more than my dad's mortgage for a nice house in Texas.

Kimie's Coffee Cup is situated within a strip mall and stands out with its white and girly-looking facade. It is quite small, as you would expect from a coffee shop, however, this isn't your typical coffee shop. It has a restaurant feel, where you have to wait to be seated and get a menu and all that jazz.

I am giving up my name to the wind. I am starting anew. I am on the edge of leading a stronger life. You may call me Penny Lane. I am a first year student at a university in the United States. It is far away from where I have grown up. I find it a weird experience because it is quite prestigious, and I don't feel like a prestigious person at all.

- Penny-nickel-dime (by an old Math teacher who also thought this was hilarious. The depth of my disdain for both of these names is ridiculous.) - Hoe (by my awesome and oh-so-sweet ex podmate) - Monkey (by my two best friends, and some random retarded family in McDonalds -_-) And I think that's about it.

Everything hurts so much; even to breathe. It all feels so heavy and like such an effort. Crying for three days straight has made my eyes puffy and red, clearly noticeable to the idiots at school asking me if I have allergies.
